The unique tribal drumming echoes STOMP/Street Drum Corps and blends a NIN/Nitzer Ebb spirit of classic Industrial Rock. CHANT is regarded as highly original, both in and outside of the Industrial genre, completely honest and 100% passionate, leaving audiences elated after seeing them live.

CHANT – the tribal-infused apocalyptic drum project created by Bradley Bills from Austin, TX – spent the last decade solidifying its mark in the Industrial Rock world with a constant US tour schedule supporting everyone from Pigface to Combichrist, Psychic TV to Orgy, and landing tours with My Life With the Thrill Kill Kult & Lords of Acid.

CHANT gained an international audience following 2013 dual US tours with KMFDM and a 2014 European tour with Die Krupps (for which Bradley also served as drummer for the headlining Krupps) and the momentum has led to a partnership with WTII Records for distribution (Nail - US / Planetworks - EU/UK) to release CHANT’s eagerly anticipated 3rd album, as well as an unprecedented, never before occurrence of being invited by KMFDM for a 3rd tour this summer on the 2015 KMFDM/CHANT Salvation Tour. Adding fuel to the fire, CHANT will make their UK debut at this summer’s Infest UK Festival alongside acts such as Project Pitchfork, Mind In A Box & Cocksure.

The new album, titled “Brave New Apocalypse”, set for release on July 18th, is described as having CHANT’s signature tribal driven sound, immersed within a modern take on classic industrial – full of punk rock venom, grinding guitar blasts, haunting noise loops – with an added mixing assault from the Ultra Heavy Beat creator Sascha Konietzko (KMFDM).

CHANT enters this summer 2015 with a new album, a full US tour, UK festival shows – and a recharged, ramped up live show like never before! Brave New Apocalypse is not stating the end of the world is imminent by any means. For CHANT – it’s just beginning.
